Ben Schapiro: From the Director's Desk

What the NSLS Funding Crisis Means to MGPL

I'm sorry to have to report the recent collapse of the Illinois statewide structure of Library Systems. These systems, in our case the North Suburban Library System (NSLS), have worked since 1965 to support each other, and most important, to make reciprocal borrowing feasible. Of the services provided to MGPL by NSLS, the state-funded delivery service was the most critical. This is a blow directly to the concept of library cooperation.

Currently, about 17% of our monthly circulation is to non-residents under the Reciprocal Borrowers Program (RBP). (An equivalent to 25% of our circulation is made up of MG residents borrowing from other libraries). While RBP patrons may come here to check out items, they, and MG residents, can return them to any library in the state. The delivery service ensured that those items returned to their home library. Without this service, MGPL and all the other public libraries would have to stop loaning to non-resident patrons OR institute some method (fines) to ensure the borrower returns the item to its home library.

Because we recognize the hardship and inconvenience the above scenario would cause, the 49 public libraries served by NSLS's delivery service have agreed to pool their resources and continue to fund, for three months, the current delivery operation. A committee of library directors, including me, is seeking both a new provider and a formula to fund this service for the balance of the year.

What this means for MGPL is that more cost has had to be borne directly by library patrons and MG tax payers. Our cost for the three-month trial delivery service was just under $1,900.

Although 2011 is still unclear, it is very likely the State Library will not fund delivery services in FY 2011 or any year after that. The cost for the balance of the year will be considerably more than $1,900, and in either case it is not a planned budget expenditure.

Delivery isn't the only cooperative venture now at risk. This library saves a considerable sum via NSLS-brokered consortia buys of electronic resources. Many of our staff attend training at a reduced cost through NSLS.

Finally, and of great importance, NSLS was the source of an extensive system of electronic communications that put the shared knowledge and experience of all member libraries at the service of any librarian.

We want you to be aware that this situation will cost, and continue to cost, our taxpayers/patrons more money. But we also want you to know that maintaining the high standards and services of the MGPL, and your satisfaction with your library, will continue to be our highest priority in the difficult years to come.

If you have any questions about the state library system and these funding issues, please don't hesitate to call me at 847-965-4220.

Tech Fest Draws Huge, Satisfied Crowd: Thanks to the many patrons and presenters who made Tech Fest such a huge success in May. Here are just a few of the many positive comments we received.

"Tech Fest 2010 was wonderful. A wonderful source of information that is fun and timely. I was able to 'play' with Skype, an iPad and the Nook. I was 'shocked' into going green by seeing the Kill-A-Watt Meter show what a plugged-in but not-turned-on lamp is costing me in electricity."

"This was a wonderful idea! Lots of good info to digest and use! Special thanks to EVERYONE who staffed the stations. All the staffers were knowledgeable and friendly"

"I love it. Please have it again. Need to bring my husband."

Numerous patrons stopped me throughout the day to talk about how interesting everything was and how all library events are just so enjoyable. There were also the usual comments about what a great, engaging, and polite group of people work at MGPL. While Tech Fest was primarily a Reference Department event (thank you, Natalya and Melissa), every department had a role in making it a success.

Treasure Afoot at Summer Challenge: Please join us this summer to "Find Treasure at Your Library." Patrons and staff are invited to read books, listen to audiobooks and CDs, watch films, and play games from MGPL's collections. As participants read/listen/watch/play their way through the summer, they will earn small prizes and chances for winning one of the grand prizes.

See You at the Farmer's Market: We're delighted at the great reception of MGPL at the Farmer's Market. We plan to schedule library volunteers at the Farmers Market as often as possible to provide youth activities, library card sign up and free books to attendees.

Library Card Signup Month Is Coming in September: Our cooperative program with area businesses providing discounts or gifts to MGPL cardholders returns in the fall. Look for the Library Supporter poster at local businesses. If you are a Morton Grove business and would like to participate, contact the Library's Community Outreach Coordinator.

The West Side Winders play original American music: rockabilly, swing, surf, country and western, rock 'n' roll, jazz and blues all packed into one concert – sometimes in the same song.

At the Check-Out Desk

During my first week of work, a man walked up to the Check-Out Desk and beckoned me close. "What's the difference between a maternity ward and a warehouse?" he asked. When I confirmed that I didn't know, he winked, then supplied the punch line to one of the worst (and therefore most marvelous) jokes I've ever heard. This is why I love my job. In the Circulation Department, there is always something moving, changing, or growing. The second you find yourself with a quiet moment, a patron will walk through the door and surprise you with a joke, a kind comment, or a question that will blow your mind. When you work in Circulation, you will never "hear it all."

Caitlin Savage, Head of Circulation

Speaking of moving, changing, and growing, that's exactly what we've been doing since I was hired in March. Luckily for me, I have a terrific staff. The Circulation team at MGPL is one of the most diverse, creative, funny, and intelligent groups of people I have ever had the pleasure of working with. Many of you know us already. If you haven't met us yet, you should! Sure, we're there to help you check your books out, but we also want to know what you think. Tell us what we can do for you!

My goal, as head of Circulation, is to make sure that we're providing the best service possible. Right now, you may have noticed that we're trying to sign people up to receive our e-notices. This enables us to let you know a few days ahead of time that your items are coming due, or to get hold notices to you faster. Signing up is easy! Either stop by or call
